

Dear All:

We are pleased to announce that a free concert on classical music will be held on Saturday, October 22, 2011. Attached please find a flyer on this wonderful event.

This concert is sponsored by the Dr. Ching-Hsing Liao Memorial Fund in cooperation with TAAGP (Taiwanese Association of America, Greater Philadelphia Chapter) board. In commemorating the late Dr. Liao's life and his love and devotion to Taiwan and Taiwanese American community, Mrs. Anna Liao has directed an establishment of a memorial fund. This free concert is a major program to continue the legacy of Dr. Liao's contribution to the Taiwanese American community.

We are extremely grateful to all the talented musicians who agree to perform in the concert. They are either established musicians or talented students in the renowned Curtis Institute and Boyer Music School of Temple University. They all received long and rigorous training in classical music, and are recipients of numerous awards. We are also fortunate and grateful to have a beautiful auditorium for our concert at Temple University Ambler Campus with ample free parking. This is indeed a rare and wonderful occasion in TAAGP's history to gather so many musical talents in one concert to benefit our cultural events.

Please mark down and reserve the date of October 22 for this exceptional program. More detailed information will be provided in a later date. We are looking forward to seeing many of you in the concert to enjoy not only the excellent music program and performance, but also the fellowship among our community.
